

How to buy ethical jewellery

Photograph: Alex Segre / Rex Features/Alex Segre / Rex Features
Gold and diamond rings - but are they ethical? Photograph: Alex Segre/Rex Features

Next Photo

Kate Carter

guardian.co.uk Editorial Fri 11 Jun 2010 14:43 BST

For a unique take on the world of fashion, sign up to the Guardian's fashion email and get all the latest news delivered straight to your inbox

SHOPPING NEWS

FS has found a fab new jewellery site - boticca.com is a curated marketplace where handpicked designers sell their designs directly to the consumer. There are already more than 100 designers on the site, and you can get at least 30% off their 'designer of the week'.

A new fashion brand, womenlikeusclothing.com, has just launched, designed by Tina Malhamé (formerly at Next, Monsoon and Per Una). The collection comprises stylish tunics and shirts from size 10 to 22, and jewellery and accessories.

Anna Lou of London has a short but sweet sale on this weekend, with 50% off all full-priced jewellery and accessories. The sale runs from 6pm on Friday 11 to 8am on Monday 14.

Want some retail therapy without spending any money? Join Big Wardrobe, the UK's biggest online fashion swapping site. Sign up for free and be one of their 37,000 plus members with 85,000 items up for swapsies.

Saveyoursole.co.uk is a new website helping you resole your posh shoes in style. If your Louboutin famous red soles are scuffed, fear not. They even have a brochure to suggest the right sole for your shoe.

OFFCUTS

Check out our indispensable guide to the best summer dresses on the high street.

Simon Chilvers scouts out the next big things at Graduate fashion week.

This week's key trends gallery shows men how to work the neutral look.

We pick the best-dressed fashionistas at the CFDA fashion awards in New York.

For all the latest fashion news, visit guardian.co.uk/fashion

News to tell us? Email kate.carter@guardian.co.uk

HOULIHAN FEVER? SOMEONE GET A GRIP.